BALL PLAYERS CHOOSE WRIGLEY DONE RIGHT

Hinrich, Duhon, Budinger, and Young choose Wrigley Done Right as the ultimate way to experience Wrigley. Providing a view that overlooks the Friendly Confines' right field wall, surround sound broadcasting, multiple flatscreens, and an open bar and grill, Wrigley Done Right is a great way to make a Cubs game a Cubs experience.

May 28, 2009 (CHICAGO) - The rooftop Wrigley Done Right (WDR) is not only the ultimate way enjoy a Cubs game, it's the ultimate place to see and be seen. Such celebrities as sports radio icon Dan Patrick; former Super Bowl champions Jim McMahon and Kevin Butler; actors Bill Murray and Joe Gannascoli (best known as Vito from HBO's Sopranos); indie bands Wilco, Low vs. Diamond, Ben Lee; the George Clinton Band and guitarist Robert Randolph have all enjoyed a game or two at Wrigley Done Right.

Last weekend, Wrigley Done Right was proud to host such well know Cubs fans as NBA players Kirk Hinrich, of the Chicago Bulls, and Chris Duhon, of the New York Knicks and former Chicago Bulls player, and NBA's top draft candidate, Chase Budinger. NFL great and former 49ers Defensive Tackle, Bryant Young also joined in the Cubs festivities and watched as the Cubs took on the Astros. The Wrigley Done Right crowd was able to mingle with their favorite ball players while enjoying the view into Wrigley.

Celeb or not, every guest at Wrigley Done Right receives the VIP treatment. Located directly behind first base and above Wrigley's bleachers, rooftop viewers at 3621-25 Sheffield are able to enjoy every Cubs' home game in luxury, with a completely unobscured view. Boasting the closest rooftop seats to home plate, Wrigley Done Right delivers views and service that could only be matched if your living room offered skybox views and catering.
